State of Hawaii Department of Defense Implements nFocus Software Community Solution for Youth Programs

PHOENIX--(BUSINESS WIRE)—August 20, 2009 The State of Hawaii has awarded nFocus Software a contract to deploy its community solution to youth programs. nFocus Software will implement a data collection and information management system this summer in the Hawaii Department of Defense's About Face program, which provides positive youth development outreach to at-risk youth.

The About Face program provides services to over a thousand young people in 25 sites throughout Hawaii. As the chosen community solution, nFocus Software's TraxSolutions participant management software will allow the About Face program to standardize and centralize data collection from multiple service providers.

"We're excited about TraxSolutions from nFocus Software being used in our youth programs," said Wayne Kanemoto, Hawaii's project officer for the State of Hawaii Department of Defense's contract with nFocus Software. "The ability to connect, monitor, and report in 'real time' means everyone is able to make decisions with an immediate impact."

Ananda Roberts, President of nFocus Software, remarked, "Communities face so many challenges today. Our solutions support community-based organizations in confronting and overcoming these challenges, by giving them the ability to quantify their impact and prove that their work is truly making a difference."

About the Hawaiian Department of Defense's About Face Family of Programs

The mission of the Hawaiian Department of Defense and its About Face Family of Programs is to provide positive youth development programs that focus on alternative activities, family strengthening, prevention and reduction of teen pregnancies, and drug awareness issues. www.ngb-youth.com
